Creating Glades

Rides and glades are an important feature within woodlands as they offer a contrasting habitat to the higher canopy. The sun can penetrate the woodland floor which creates a rich and diverse habitat that will support and provide a food source for many other species.

These areas require sensitive management, no management would result in bramble takeover to an extent it would overcrowd and overshadow the grasses.

The Friends of Warton Crag did a great job clearing this small area let's see what benefits it brings in the spring.
